Web-Based Learning—Embrace Technology Empower Yourself

It is challenging to keep up with technology and encourage technology integration in the classroom, but with web-based learning, students and educators have training at their fingertips. See how just-in-time learning can positively impact technology skills, encourage technology integration, and empower learners to excel.

Faculty Factions—Realigning Faculty Energy

This hands-on interactive session will describe a conceptual framework for developing adjunct faculty by focusing on the classroom environment—increasingly an online or hybrid format—and engender an enhanced understanding of the institution, including its student support services. This holistic development model will expose institutional barriers to change and reunite the factions into a seamless system in which students will be the ultimate beneficiaries.
